Tobacco markets now open

By JAMES A. SMITH
Extension Agent

Dark Fired Cured Tobacco sales opened Tuesday. Acreage is down this year, but with more than adequate rains, the yield per acre will be up. Some growers have expressed a concern that their may be too much thin leaf in this year's crop. In barns that I have visited,this appears to be a high quality crop. The tobacco has cured with a good color.

The Annual Meeting of Lynchburg DHIA will be Wednesday, December 5, 10:30 at Maude's Restaurant. Hope all DHI farms will be represented.

The oil crisis of ten years ago caused many homeowners and industries to take another look at their energy source. Wood as a fuel reversed its downward trend and has been gaining in importance ever since. A 1980 study at Dartmouth University shows that 50 percent of all new U.S. boiler installations (excluding large utility boilers) were being fired primarily by wood. When the term wood is used, more often it refers to wood residues. Sawdust is a bi-product frequently used, but it's also increasing in price; in just two years, sawdust prices have jumped 18 percent.

A word of caution is you are burning wood--don't burn treated wood scraps or treated plywood. The fumes from these products are poisonous.

We've had several calls about fleas in the home and grass this fall; just when you would expect populations to decline--problems develop.

A flea can develop from egg to adult in two weeks. A female flea can lay about 10 eggs a day and can live for 14 days. A cat can support 300-400 fleas. Young cats may have more fleas than older cats. A vaccuum cleaner can be very effective in removing fleas, but throw away the bag immediately.

There is one aerosol spray that is particularly useful for flea control. It contains methoprene (Precor). This material helps control the larval stages of the flea. It is a growth regulator.

With colder weather here, you may have observed cluster flies trying to gain entrance to the home. These large black flies are looking for a place to hibernate. A fly swatter or diazinon spray can be used. Vapona strips containing dichlorvos may be hung in the attic. Don't use these strips in rooms with infants, aged, ill or where food is prepared or served.

At one time we felt that the anti-desicant sprays were helpful in reducing losses to evergreens planted in the fall. They apparently do little good during most winters. Some work in Maryland suggests watering during the fall and again just before the ground freezes. They found applying nitrogen fertilizer after the first frost was useful. These are simple culture preventives that nearly everyone can do to newly planted evergreen shrubs.

The Federal Energy Tax Credits are due to be phased out after December 31, 1985. If there are things you can do to save energy in the home, you'll want to take advantage of this tax break.

If you have a heat pump in your home, pick up a copy of "Operating Guide for Heat Pumps" from the Extension Office.

Engines need to be winterized by cleaning and changing crankcase oil. Do this when the oil is warm.

Drain gasoline from the fuel tank, then start engine and run until the residual fuel is exhausted.

Remove spark plugs and put one tablespoon oil in each cylinder. Crank the engine over several times to lubricate the combustion chamber and valves.

Happiness is 4-H

'Fun' week set

By FRANK H. SWEET
Extension Agent

4-H Share-the-Fun programs are being held each day this week after school in the Appomattox Elementary School auditorium. 4-H members are performing vocal acts, instrumental acts, skits, dance acts and a host of other talent acts in the Share-the-Fun programs. The top acts each day are invited to participate in the County Share-the-Fun show on Dec. 13 at ACHS. Special ribbon awards are provided for each participant in Share-the-Fun by American Federal Savings and Loan Association of Appomattox.

The 4-H Achievers community club has volunteered to handle the decorations for the County Share-the-Fun show. A committee composed of Terri Hamlett, Sharla Kvasnicka and Beth Carter will develop plans and a theme for the show. The Teen Leader 4-H group will provide the back stage work and the emceeing for the final show.

Brett Marston will return from Chicago and National 4-H Congress on Friday of this week in time to attend a weekend State 4-H Congress planning meeting. Our State 4-H Congress in Virginia is planned by the four state 4-H officers and 12 district cabinet members. Brett is one of the two cabinet members from the East Central Extension District which includes a nineteen county area.

4-H families have until Dec. 14 to turn in completed pine seedling order forms. The Virginia Division of Forestry sponsors the 4-H Pine Seedling Program through which families may order 25 or 50 loblolly pine seedlings provided that certain criteria are met. The details and order forms have been offered to all 4-H members during the past several weeks. Parents are asked to call the Appomattox Extension Office (352-8244) if they have questions.

Senior 4-H members must turn in completed senior 4-H summary forms by Nov. 30 (Friday) in order to be considered for 4-H All Star status in 1985. The 4-H All Star award is one of the highest individual honors that an older 4-H member may receive. The All Star selection is based on a member's total 4-H accomplishments, including leadership and citizenship activities.
